

CASE STUDY | Community Library

An architectural firm planning a state-of-the-art community library needed elegant, welcoming, yet affordable table and carrel solutions.

An architectural firm approached Vanerum North America with the challenge to provide tables and carrels for a community library that captured the understated elegance required in the design intent, but at an affordable cost that reflected wise use of the community's resources. Preliminary budgets from other sources were proving prohibitive.

Studio provided drawings that captured design intent. Budget pricing was developed that exceeded goals, and the architectural firm specified Vanerum in the project documents.

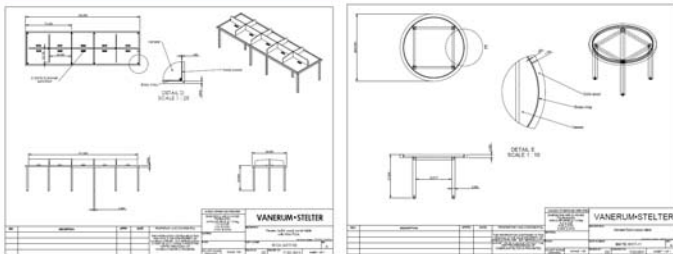

The result was product solutions that blended into the atmosphere perfectly, and a pleasing, comforting atmosphere a community could be proud to showcase.

Veneer study tables with lamp and brass inlay.

Expanded study area with group tables.

Study area.